The Belle.

1st ~~vers~~ Brightly beamed the witching twilight,
From her eyes so deeply blue,
Which from yonder doorn above us
Seemed to stare thru heavenly hues,

2nd ~~vers~~ Gracefully her auburn ringlets
Clustered round a brow of snow?
And she seemed a gentle fairy,
Sent to cheer us here below.

3rd ~~vers~~ But at noon, - a blight came o'er her,
Chilling with its poisonous breath.
And at evening she was folded,
In the cold embrace of death.

4th ~~vers~~ All to dark and all to dreary.
Was this world for one so fair?
And she sped away to heaven?
Where no winter chills the air.

5th ~~vers~~ All to fair all to lovely.
Was she for a chime like ours,
Till a she, passed away at evening,
Like the breath of summer flowers.

6th ~~vers~~ In the silent earth they layed her,
Where the weeping willows wave,
And at night fall shed their tear drops
On her dew besprinkled grave

1st Verse

To Gayhead Cliffs we bid adieu
Shook hands with Polly K. & Joe
Our anchor weighed our sails unfurled
We're bound to plough the watery world

Chorus

Huzza we're Outward bound
Huzza we're Outward bound

2^d Verse

Away we go with a pleasant breeze
Our ship skeds nine knots at least
Our Captain does our wants supply and while we're back we'll never say die
Huzza we're — De De —

3^d Verse

Oh! when we arrive at New Bedford
Or any distant Port unheard
Some large Sperm Whale we'll take in tow
And home to the Vineyard boys we'll go
Huzza we're Homeward bound &c —

4th Verse

When we arrive in New Bedford docks
When the bloomers they come down in flock
The pretty girls you'll here them say
Here comes my sweetheart with his mouth
Huzza — De De —

5th Verse

Next we go to the dog and Bell
Where there's good poison for to sell
Then in comes Archy with a smile
Oh! drink my boys it's worth your while For I know you're — De De —

6th Verse

Next to the Boarding house we go
Where the pretty dam she cuts a pretty fro
She sits at the table and serves out the tea
Drink it Jack aint game to treat me
For I know you're homeward De — De

Vicissitudes of a Sailor's Life.

'Tis hard to part and leave behind,
Our native land.

Where kind friends dwell

We love so well,

We give the parting hands,

To brave the dangers of the sea.

Far from home and comforts free,

Far away where sorrows lie,

Where domestic blissing die,

Where the raging tempest blows,

It is there where sailors go,

And when in some distant land,

Standing on a foreign sand,

Far from nature's dearest ties,

'Tis often then temptations rise.

When if not watchful we may sin.

Where multitudes they enter in.

And if they do continue so,

Down to perdition they will go.

But may the Lord forgive the past.

When time shall here no longer last,

Am

The Speaking Flower.

Our ship is ready to depart.

But ere I go from thee,

Some proof of Love to cheer my heart,

I pray thee grant to me.

2nd verse

O! give me, while the land
I leave, in which we meet,
At least, that flower that's in your hand.
No token of regret.

3rd verse

Each day in tempest and in calm,
I'll wear it on my breast,
And it shall shed hopes soothing balm,
O'er all my hours of rest.

4th verse With pallid cheek and heaving breast,
And half distracted air.

The humbling maid, to heaven addressed
A faintly murmured prayer.

5th verse

Then answerest not, and I must go
Unloved across the main.

How and my thou never know'st.

What 'tis to love in vain.

6th verse

The maiden gasped she could not tell
In words, the love she bore,
But from her hand the blossom fell,
Before her, on the floor.

Lamentations

An unfortunate and unhappy young man
Whose thoughts of misery fill his breast
His life I know is but a span
But must pass and never be repeated

What makes me sad I am often asked
Why melancholy they wish to know
Could they but raise the curtain of the past
They see the cause of all my woe

Deprived of a mother when but a child
And left an orphan in the world forlorn
Through life's rugged path my own steps to guide
Or bear a step mother's hate and scorn

I had a brother and sister but where are they Alas - alas I know not where
Perhaps they have gone to their silent grave
While I am here a wanderer

Many long years have gone and passed
Since I embraced my kindred friend
Far far away my lot is cast
Far far away my life will end

I have laboured hard with willing hands
And wandered far over land and sea
I have tried to go by sea or land
Good fortune never smiles on me

But why should I murmur or complain
It may be Heaven's just decree
Why strive to prosper, or to gain
That which God has decreed for me

Alfred Jones

Genette to Genet

you are going far away far away far away Genette
I have ^{no} one left to love me now and you too may forget
Yet my heart it shall be with you wherever you do go
Can you look me in the face my love and say the same

With your Jacket on and your beautiful cockade
You'll be forgetting all those promises you have made
With your gun upon your shoulder and your ^{by your side} ~~bergs~~ ^{side} You'll be cutting some fair tarry and making this your

When glory leads the way you'll be rushing madly ^{on}
Not thinking if they kill you my happy life is done
And should Victory crown the day some general ^{you'll be} Although I should be proud to hear of this what would become of me

If I was King of France or what is more the Pope of Rome
I would ^{have} ~~no~~ fighting men abroad or weeping mounds at ^{home}
But all the world should ^{maintain} ~~be~~ at peace every man
And them that made the quarrels be ^{lost} ~~the~~ only ones

The Rose of Allendale

The moon was pale, the sky was clear
With a breeze came over the sea
When Mary left her Highland home
And wandered forth with me
The flowers decked the mountain side
And fragrance filled the vale
By far the sweetest flower there
Was the rose of Allendale

When ere I wander East or West
Tho' fate began to lour
A solace still was there to me
In life's lonely hour
When the tempest lashed our galleon's bark
And rent our shivering sail
One maiden form that stood the storm
Was the rose of Allendale

When my fevered lips were parched
On bricks burning sand
The whispered hopes of happiness
And tales of distant land
My life would be a wilderness
Unblessed by fortune's gale
Had fate not linked my lot to hers
The rose of Allendale
